1814 Survey
General Observations

The general observations section of the survey focused on the types of land in various parts of the town, the value of the timber, and the potential for developing waterpower or minerals.

1. Our language and the way we use it changes over time. Find one example of an expression used in the document that we wouldn't use today.

2. What are 3 different ways they describe the characteristics of the soil?

3. What were the different types of trees mentioned?

4. What seems to make the author call some lands poor?

5. Find the homestead you recreated in the previous lesson. How is it described?

6. Who signed the survey when it was finished?
